Two Plans of Reconstruction. The logic of events is daily opening the eyes of the people North and South to the justice, magnanimity and fairness of the Congressional plan of re-construction. If the South will accept it, the trouble will soon be over; but if they reject what has been offered them by the conservative branch of the Republican party they will have to accept such terms as will be dictated to them by such Radicals as Sumner, Stevens, Wade and others, who have for the time being been compelled to yield their their extreme views. The Congressional plan and President Johnson's plan may be summed up briefly as follows :

ggerated points of the two plans proposed. We dely any one to deny or dispute the one or the other. The Press ident wishes to retain for the South the elective power for President and Congress that it had under slavery, when the white man was empowered to vote both for himself and the slave. Con-gress demands that a white man in the either of the plans proposed, and those who pretend or assert that it has are endeayuring to deceive the people.

Unrobertunate Was O II A Goung Unpoktunate— Vabri II A Joung medical student from Michigan, who had been attending lectures in New York for some time, and who considered himself exceedingly good looking and fascinating, made a deadly 'onset on the heart and fortune of a blooming young tady in the same family with him. After a prolonged siege the lady surrendered. They were married on Wednesday, in the morning. The same afternoon the young wife sent for and exhibited to the astonished student a "beautiful" little daugiter sged three years and a half.
"Good heavens! then you was a who remember the calm, reasoning tone of the old National Intelligencer through all the not political contests of the last generation—its fairness towards its opponents, and its pure and simple but elevated style of appeal to its friends—it is indeed dreadful; for those who recall the Intelligencer then, to read now its crazy fanaticism, and its wild sophomorical passion, in its editorial support of the President. How unreasonable and wicked, for instance, are such utterances as these we quote from its columns-how lamentable to think of them as from the model po litical journal of America for a half a century. They could not be more illy-cancelved or more violently phrased, if they had come fresh from the lips of him in whose cause they are used, and who, we fear, has poisoned all our current political discussions with his own hot passion and violence:

"Wacharm the passion and violence:

"We charge the class of partisan realots, known as radical leaders (says the National Intelligencer), with compassing an early and violent overthrow of the government. They know that this charge is true. They know that this charge is true. They know that they are sworn to resist, the restoration of the Union to the last extremity, and with every means of violence which they can invoke. The plot is not in the hands of those children or enthusiasm who elaborate their chimeras into imwho elaborate their chimeras into im-practicable detail, and drop from an unguarded hat the puerile-record of unguarded hat the puerile record of their folly, but of cold-blooded, shrewd, hardened old demagogues, with no farnaticism but selfishness, no enthusiasm but in tyranny and no faith but in power. With baleful sagacity, these conspirators keep the outline free to salapt the work, from time to time to direct the work, from time to time to direct the work, from time to time and artful, and sclove and the salar way.

The Hulsemann Letter.

It is still an open question whether Mr. Everett or Mr. Webster wrote the famous Hulsemann letter which the latter, as Secretary of State, sent to the Austrian Minister, and which for its bold defiance and contempt of Austria, and pithy utterance, delighted Americans and startled Europeans. Mr. Everett's friends insist, oil his own authority, we suppose, that he prepared it for his friend; but Mr. Webster's admirers and confidants are even more sure it was his own. The style was not the ordinary, legitimate one of either PRESIDENT'S PLAN-ist. Leaves the emancipated slave without any protec-tion of person or property under the law. man; but it was more that of Mr. Webster than of Mr. Everett. A correspondent of the National Intelligencer, Franklin, N. H., furnishes this particular evidence of Mr. Webster's nuthor-ship of the document; Austrian Minister in Describer, 1850.

Yorcester Webster, a favorite cousin of the great statesman, and Judge Nesmith, made him a visit (ogeher, and while there, the letter becoming a subject of conversation, worsester Webster, a randing near the table in the great statesman, and Judge Nesmith, made him a visit (ogeher, and while there, the letter becoming a subject of conversation, worsester Webster, a randing near the table in the least room, in the presence of Daniel Webster, while we when which the Hulsemann letter, while the disliked free in the seast room, in the presence of Daniel Webster, while the disliked free in the seast room, in the presence of Daniel Webster, while we when which the Hulsemann letter, while we have a return the seast room, in the presence of the early part of 1851, when Major Anderson was shut up by surrounding traitors in the national defences of Charleston harbor. Cougress. Their hope is that Andrew Johnson will build up a party that will enable them to overthrow the Union party of the loyal States, and again dominate the country, or strike again and successfully for independence. The seed of a new civil war is wrapped up in every ballet cast for a copperhead candidate for Congress.

—Throughout all the South not one Union man anstains Andrew Johnson's "policy." That of itself is an unanswerable, conclusive, startling arguient. Among the hundreds of thou ands of traitors North and South there is not one who does not sustain this "policy." Can any voter who yet hes-frafes about his duty to his country need more to decide him than the bare statement of these two facts?

The Rebels, repudiators on princi-ple, have, in their new State constitu-tions, repudiated the Confederate war lebt. They never would have paid it anyhow. But they have nowhere repudiated their purpose to make the United States pay it. On the contrary, the very first month that sees them, with their Copperhead allies, in a majority in Congress, will see the debt fastened on the North. be North. Precisely one of the issues forced ipon us in the coming elections by Johnson's "polloy" is, whether one white rebel in South Carolina, like white reper in South Carolina, like Wade Hampton, shall count as much at the polls and in Congress as three such New York patriots as Peter Coop-er, Ezra Cornell and Reuben E. Fen-ton.

-We want guarantees, not promises from Andrew Johnson's rebel friends. Twenty months' trial of the Presiden-tial agens of the "unreconstructed" has tanght us the utter worthlessness of professions and promises made by unrepentant rebellion to loyalty. The country now demands Constitutional guarantees, and will take nothing less. —Does the right to make laws for the people of the United States reside in a Congress elected by the ballot, "or in a President elected by a bullet?"
